Day 2

Visitthe Oriental Pearl TV Tower, Yu Garden, and Shanghai Museum. In the late afternoon, fly back to Beijing.

Standing across the Huangpu River from the Bund, the Oriental Pearl TV Tower is a landmark of Shanghai. There you will take a bird's eye view of Shanghai from a floor more than 200 meters up.

Yu Garden is a famous classical garden located in Anren Jie, Shanghai. The garden was finished in 1577 by a government officer of the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644) named Pan Yunduan. Yu in Chinese means pleasing and satisfying, and this garden was specially built for Pans parents as a place for them to enjoy tranquil and happy time in their old age.

Reputed as one the best museum in China, the Shanghai Museum is a museum of Chinese ancient art with a collection of 120,000 precious Chinese works of art and archaeological findings. Shanghai Museum has 11 state-of-the-art galleries and three special exhibition halls arranged on four floors, all encircling a spacious cylindrical atrium. Many foreign visitors to the museum often rank it as Shanghais very best site.
